AI You Can Trust: Foundations for Responsible, Scalable Innovation

As generative AI moves from pilots to production, organisations face a new challenge: how to deploy AI responsibly, at scale and in a way that builds long-term trust with regulators, customers and internal stakeholders.
We'll explore the trends that separates AI hype from sustainable business value. We'll look at how to design governance that empowers rather than restricts innovation. More importantly where data leaders are drawing the line between experimentation and accountability.
This private leadership dinner, brings together senior data and technology leaders to discuss what responsible AI looks like in real-world enterprise environments.
